

Partial closure of Durward Street to vehicles and pedestrians

Crossrail's contractor BBMV are constructing the new Crossrail station in Whitechapel. The section of Durward Street which crosses the London Overground lines between Trinity Hall and Kempton Court will be removed in early 2015 to allow construction of the new station concourse. In order to prepare for these works further utility diversion activity is required in this section of Durward Street from 22 September 2014 onwards.

This means that the section of road between Trinity Hall and Kempton Court will be closed to pedestrians and vehicles from 22 September 2014 until 2018. This will allow the utility diversion work to take place, followed by the removal of the bridge and then the work to construct the new station concourse. The alternative route for pedestrians will be via Whitechapel Road.

During these works we will try to minimise disruption to the local community. This will include reopening the pavement as soon as possible and using best practical means to minimise any noise generated by our works in order to meet the requirements set by the London Borough of Tower Hamlets.

Duration of work

- Partial closure of a section of Durward Street from 22 September 2014 until mid-August 2018

What to expect

- A section of Durward Street between Trinity Hall and Kempton Court closed to vehicles and pedestrians for approximately four years
- Enabling works and station concourse construction approximately four years

What we will do

- Monitor noise and dust when carrying out activities in the vicinity of Whitechapel Station and the Durward Street site. We will keep within the levels permitted by the London Borough of Tower Hamlets
